4. [redacted] 25X1
- [redacted] the documents were kept in steel files under a double lock. Twenty-four hours a day a guard stood within three meters of the files. Any person who took a document from the files had to sign for it. 25X1
5. The [redacted] classified document section [redacted] was located at the headquarters of the 45th Gds. Mecz. Regt. [redacted] 25X1
- A specifically designated classified documents officer, who was directly responsible to the chief of staff, was in charge of the section. [redacted] all Soviet Army manuals and secret orders were usually kept in this section. 25X1
- [redacted] 25X1
- [redacted] a large book entitled, The Order of Battle of the United States Army, marked "Secret" [redacted]
6. [redacted] 25X1
- [redacted] counter-intelligence officers, when they were in town, often dressed in civilian clothes to conceal their identity 25X1
7. [redacted]
- anyone in the Soviet Army was permitted to own a camera.
8. [redacted]
- the 67th Sep. AAA Bn. did not have a unit standard. [redacted]
9. The 45th Gds. Mecz. Regt. and the 67th Sep. AAA Bn. did not have any security duties other than guarding their own areas. No special identification was required of Soviet soldiers to enter a compound, and therefore it was very easy to get inside. However, it was almost impossible for an EM to leave the compound through the gate unless he was accompanied by an officer. [redacted] out of the compound by jumping over the fence [redacted] not noticed by the guards. It was simple to get out in this way. Officers could enter and leave a compound without identification. It was very easy to enter a maneuver area [redacted] 25X1
- [redacted] very few people lived in maneuver areas, and most of the villages within them were unoccupied. [redacted] 25X1
10. Concerning the employment of foreign nationals [redacted] some Austrian repair and maintenance men were allowed to enter the compounds [redacted] when repairs were necessary in barracks or other buildings. In such cases [redacted] the Austrians had to make appointments with the unit supply officer. This officer would write up a list of the Austrians who would be entering the compound, and he would give it to the sentry at the gate. Then, before the Austrian repairmen could enter a compound, they had to show their identification [redacted] 25X1
- [redacted] this identification consisted of a card bearing the person's picture and name. 25X1
